Jodi DiPiazza is an award-winning, prolific composer and songwriter — a four-time ASCAP Morton Gould Young Composer finalist with 50+ original songs and 170+ compositions and arrangements for orchestra, choir, chamber ensemble, and voice. A coloratura soprano and pianist who accompanies herself, she is a graduate of the Mannes Prep Composition Honors Program and a summa cum laude graduate of Rollins College.

She first reached a national audience as a child, performing “Firework” with Katy Perry at Comedy Central’s autism benefit Night of Too Many Stars — a duet that went viral and has passed ten million views. She has since returned to duet with “Weird Al” Yankovic and with Cynthia Erivo and The Roots, made her Broadway debut at the Gershwin Theatre, and shared stages with Marin Mazzie, Stephanie J. Block, and many others.
